CORPORATIONS get good service and government sometimes poor service. Colonel Lindbergh is named Federal Aviation Advisor, and WHEN HE WORKS his Uncle Sam will pay him $25 a day.

All Hollywood knows that Lindbergh could have had $500,000 for making one picture, which would have paid him about $10,000 an hour for his work.

However, as Lindbergh says, flying is his business, and $25 a day for work on Government flying would suit him better than any price for standing before a camera. Besides, he has a job with Gen. A. T. W. Allen, selecting landing places, etc., for the railroad, which will pay a salary considerably better than $25 a day.

Important to owners of 25-60,000 automobiles running in America is this question: WHAT CAN THE GOVERNMENT AND HERBERT HOOVER DO ABOUT CONSERVING THE NATION'S OIL SUPPLY?

Statistics show that the country will use in 1929 3,110,000,000 BARRELS OF OIL. These barrels, slowly straining and to end, would make a necklace of which your little boy can tell you the length, allowing five feet to the barrel.

Uses of oil, gasoline and other products of petroleum increase daily. Horses will soon disappear from city streets. Railroad cars tell you that gasoline transportation by motor bus and truck is only beginning.

The New York Central railroad has ordered from the General Electric Company driving machinery for its first combination oil-electric passenger engine, 100 feet long, weighing 100,000 pounds. Much oil will be needed to move such an engine at high speed with a train of cars behind it. The biggest German passenger ship, just launched, is motor driven.

Where is the oil to be found and whence will machine power come when reckless folly shall have squandered the nation's oil wealth. Men that talk of a "crisis of oil supply" will live to pay 50 cents a gallon and more for gasoline.

Efficiency using gas more economically will come. Even good engines waste 45 per cent of fuel. Power from the sun will be harnessed some day, and, perhaps, even an electric motor better than a gas engine.

But all that is in the future. The danger of a disastrous oil situation, with irreparable damage to the automobile industry and high costs for automobile owners, is here NOW.

If Mr. Hoover, who combines engineering skill with plenty of will power, can solve that problem, the country will be much obliged.

Meanwhile, oil companies conserve their oil in the ground, buying supplies from the squanderers.

Mr. Rockefeller and his associates know what they were about when they established oil resources as far away as the Arctic Circle, and reached out for oil in Russia and Venezuela.

When Robles described Gargantua's meals, his imagination seemed to outstrip all possibilities. But Uncle Sam's menu would make Gargantua seem an ascetic.

Americans last year ate more than nine billion pounds of pork tongue. Their total production, not including imports, of dressed meats was 16,555,000,000 pounds.

The people do not eat enough pork. The best meat, especially for children, and all but man's meat, and lamb consumed in 1928 amounted to only 671,000,000 pounds. Of that meat only 1,000,000 pounds were eaten. Americans are unwise prejudiced against it.

The biggest bank in America, a two billion dollar bank, created by merger of the Guaranty Trust and National City of Commerce, Myron Taylor, one of the ablest business men in the country, engineered that deal.

This means hard thinking and figuring for Charles E. Mitchell and his directors of the National City Bank, biggest in the world now. National City, divided and distributed, sells at the equivalent of $2500 a share, and many that invested lower down bless its name. But it is hard to give up first place. Wall Street will watch National City and wonder that that dollar Colossus is so do. Other banks may be gathered in and little people will watch the shopping. With interest rates years a two billion dollar bank will be called quite a nice little bank.

R. I. Drug Leader Gets 3 Years

Prison for three years for the leader in the drug traffic in this state, Edward J. Kearney, 27, of Broad st., in Superior Criminal Court today was sentenced to three years in State Prison.

Attorney Benjamin Cinarul, counsel for Kearney, who was arrested October 18, 1927, with a quantity of drugs in his possession, sought for a continuance, but Judge Charles A. Walsh said the case had dragged long enough. He added he would not tolerate drug peddling in Rhode Island.

When Kearney was taken into custody he carried a suitcase in which were 25 ounces of gum opium, three ounces of smoking opium, a pipe, lamp and pipe bowls.

FIERS WILL HUNT LOST FISHERMEN

A seaplane from the naval air station at Squantum at daybreak tomorrow will join the fleet of Coast Guard boats combing the water from Portland to Provincetown in search of five fishermen adrift in three open boats since Thursday's snowstorm.

No trace of the fishermen, all members of the crew of the schooner Abner, had been found up to a late hour today according to radiograms received at the Navy Yard.

The order for the seaplane to join the search was received from the Navy Department at Washington by Rear Admiral Philip Andrews at Charleston.

Lt. George B. Stevens was immediately dispatched from the navy yard to make the search. He was driven by fast automobile to the East Boston airport and from there flown to the Dennis airfield at Squantum. From the latter he was rushed to the Squantum Coast Guard station.

Strained While Out Fishing

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 23 (AP)—Despite denial, a rumor persisted this afternoon that all is not well with young Straining, of Miami, Fla., who battles Jack Sharkey, of Boston, here next Wednesday night. The report was to the effect that Straining strained a shoulder muscle while deep sea fishing last Tuesday.

The Georgian has looked too good in his recent workouts but "B" Straining, his manager, insists that his boy is in splendid physical condition and will whip the Georgian in a convincing manner.

Both Sharkey and Straining planned strenuous workouts late today and tomorrow.

120 Hub Fight Fans Off on Mack Special

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Chaperoned by the stalwart Boston Puritan, Eddie Mack, 120 Sharkey rosters departed the Hub tonight for Miami Beach, Fla., for a Mack special of 10 cars.

Other Sharkey rosters were to be picked up at Providence, New Haven, New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington.

The contingent will arrive in Miami tomorrow.

THUG, IN TAXI, FORCES DRIVER TO AID HIM IN DORCHESTER HOLDUP

Stepping out of a taxi as if to make a purchase, a lone gun man today walked into a chain store in Adams st., Dorchester, near Fields Corner, held up Manager Frank McGrady of Welles ave., and walked out with $175.

Leaping from the store, the young thug tripped over a snow bank, literally fell into the cab and pointed a gun in the driver's back, ordered him to "drive as he never drove before."

Carl P. Brewster, driver of the cab, headed down Adams st. and swung into Park st., in the direction of Northampton ave., where thousands of mid-afternoon shoppers were passing.

As the taxi rounded the corner near the Fields Corner rapid transit station the holdup man flung himself from the cab and into a crowd of shoppers.

Brewster, dazed by the suddenness of the bandit's act, took him in the crowd. He found a patrolman and told his story.

He described the youth as about 27 years old, of dark complexion and apparently of foreign extraction.

"I got a call for a fare at Parkman and Adams sts.," he told police. "When I arrived there this young fellow told me to wait a minute and disappeared into the store."

"In less than a minute he came dashing out and told me to drive, emphasizing his order with the barrel of his gun in my back."

Though the district was crowded with shoppers, the police quickly realized the extent of the mad taxi dash through Park st. so quick and bold were the details carried out.

Gaugi Cero, under sentence of death for the murder of Joseph Fantasia, but striving to prove Samuel Gallo the guilty man, declared today on the witness stand at Gallo's trial in Suffolk Superior Court that everything he said at his own trial was a lie.

Cero repeatedly thrilled spectators, filling the courtroom to overflowing, with calm but dramatic answers to questions first at his hours of grilling by the defense attorney.

"You wanted to be a witness," he said.

MESSENGER ROBBED OF PAYROLL IN SUBWAY

Frank B. Lane, messenger for the Henry-Kimball Motor Company of Kenmore st., was robbed of a payroll of $375 while riding in a trolley car between Scollay and Park st. today, he reported to the police.

Lane said he was on his way to the automobile company's office, after having drawn the money from the First National Bank.

He heard a man witness stand on and leaving it at Park st. to get a Kenmore car, he discovered that his paycheck had been slashed twice and the money taken from the pocket of his suit coat.

The payroll was contained in a wallet and consisted of $375 in new bills, comprising 25 ten dollar bills and five five-dollar bills.

Lane told the police that he had no idea as to who might have robbed him, as he did not notice the slasher of his overcoat, and so far as he could remember, no one forced him to get out of the car.

Special Officers Lynch and Dwyer of the Milk st. station were assigned to the case.

Washington, Feb. 23.—The present law which permits narcotic violations to be settled secretly for cash will be thoroughly investigated by the proposed joint Congressional committee on the drug traffic. This assurance just came from sponsors of the inquiry.

Recent disclosures that a number of physicians have settled violations by the payment of cash compromises have drawn the attention of Congress to this practice.

STAGE AND SCREEN

BREATHLESS MYSTERY, PANOPIED ROMANCE, SCAMPERING COMEDY, CROWD NEW FILMS

PENDING certain evidences of affection, Louise Brooks may not call the pendant her own. But Louis John Bartels always plays the sap and in "The Canary Murder Case" (Olympia and Fenway) he's true to type.

A GOOD IMPRESSION is registered by Reginald Denry on his first meeting with Alice Day in "Red Hot Speed" at the Keith-Albee.

SADLY, Lupe Velez discovers that a heart of gold does not always beat under a gold-framed uniform. William Boyd is the boy and the film's "The Lady of the Pavements" at Loew's State.

APPLIED PALMISTRY. For downright impudence Edna Murphy has got to hand it to Lew Harvey. She is apparently driven to it in "The Greyhound Limited" at the Seelys.

WHAT'S WRONG HERE? All those in favor of this picture will please signify by raising their hands—both of them, like Charles Eaton—and Helen Twicken trees will do the rest. ("Ghost Talks," Modern, Beacon).

MORE PROPHECY ON THE TALKING FILM

By LEO GAFFNEY

EVERYBODY talks about the talkies, and by this time everybody has been curious enough to have seen one. The talkie manufacturers ought to be pleased, since trade has been brisk. But the industry is not so sure; for sound has encroached to such an extent that, like the genie freed from the bottle, it rises above its liberator and begins to lead him around by the nose. Now the movie business is pugnacious, it resents having its nose tweaked, and, moreover, will not be led. Therefore, if it now appears to erige before its unruly master, bear in mind that it is but watching its chance to turn the tables upon him and once more gain control. And so you have a set of perturbed producers frenziedly struggling to placate the monster while praying for early deliverance.

THE present demand for sound pictures is insatiable, and all the producers can hope for, for awhile, is to cope with it. But when the novelty wears off, the present topsy-turvy condition will shake down, and then the movies will know what's what. They will know, for example, whether a film ought to talk all the time, or part of the time, or not at all. In the mean time, the public wants to hear its favorite, and the producers must serve the public—or the genie, as you will.

UNQUESTIONABLY, the present style of talking film will soon be regarded as babbling antiquity. The lightning speed of screen development and the resulting of public taste will attend that. Malcolm St. Clair, who made the latest talker at the Olympia and Fenway, "The Canary Murder Case," is himself responsible for the statement that: "Just as the best silent films were those with the least talk, so the best talkers will be those with the least talk." Mr. St. Clair is one of the few directors in the game that has never made a bad picture and he has yet guessed wrong in his prediction regarding movie pictures.

THE opinions of Mr. St. Clair contrasted with his present activities support this article. He uses beyond his current work, but bows to the times. If Malcolm St. Clair has made a talker it is bound to be a good one. He will keep right on making them and some day, at some time, he and others of his stamp will discover how little, how much and how sound will be used in this periturb business.

ENCOURAGED by the St. Clair stand, the writer now crystallizes on his own—and this in spite of his extreme youth, his looks and sees himself, as perhaps the most inveterate moviegoer of all, taking in all the talkers with great excitement, for the next year or so, and then coming to the conclusion that films are getting ear-riens and perhaps had better have a little music instead. In that event the obedient producers will look at their talkers and then at their music scores. After that it will be merely a question of "Shoot, Luke, or give up the show."

FILM FARE FOR NEW WEEK

METROPOLITAN—"The Dummy" (first run), an all-talker adapted from the story by Harvey O'Higgins. Story of an office boy who succeeds in outwitting a gang of kidnapers by playing dead and dumb. Cast includes Ruth Chatterton, Freddie Murch, Vondell Darr, Mickey Bennett, Zaza Pitts and Jack Oakie. Robert Milton directed. A Paramount picture. Also augmented stage features commemorating National Public Education.

KEITH MEMORIAL—Molpe Morher in "Marquis Preferred" (first run), story by Ernest Vajda. Impassioned but elegant boulevardier goes forth in search of profitable investments. Cast includes Nora Lane, Charles Cocking and Ed Fawcett. Frank Tuttle directed. A Paramount picture. Also vaudeville.

LOEW'S STATE—"Lady of the Pavements" (first run), adapted from the Karl Valloiseller tale, "La Pairs." Romantic drama of the time of Napoleon the Third. Cast features Lupe Velez, William Boyd, Julia Gaudal and George Fawcett. D. W. Griffith directed. A United Artists picture. Also a stage presentation which includes a dance ensemble, "Milk," and a Montecarlo appearance of Paul Spitznagel and band.

KEITH-ALBEE—Reginald Denry in "Red Hot Speed" (first run), dialogue comedy by Gladys Lehman. A story of traffic rules and traffic courts. Cast includes Alice Day, Charles Fawcett and De Witt Jennings. Joseph Hennessy directed. A Universal picture. Also vaudeville.

OLYMPIA AND FENWAY—William Powell in "The Canary Murder Case" (first run), an all-talker adapted from the story to S. S. Van Dine. A thrilling detective story that offers nothing new. Cast includes Louise Brooks, James Hall, Jean Arthur, Louis John Bartels, Neil Sparks and Charles Lane. Malcolm St. Clair directed. A Warner Brothers picture. Also vaudeville.

MODERN AND BEACON—"The Ghost Talks" (second week), an all-talker that you might call "excessing force." Charles Eaton and Helen Twicken are the principal players.

SCOLLAY—Monie Blue in "The Greyhound Limited" (first run), dialogue production by Albert Herman. Railroad thriller with two girls and a girl in the foreground. Cast includes Edna Murphy, Grant Withers and Lew Harvey. Howard Restorion directed. A Warner Brothers picture. Also vaudeville.

LOEW'S ORPHEUM—"The Trail of '36" a melodrama of the Roundell gold rush that is one of the "big" things of the screen. Cast includes Lonnie Del Rio, Robert Forties, Karl Dane and Harry Carey. Clarence Brown directed. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture. Also vaudeville.

Pictures-Variety

BOWDOIN—Thirty-seventh Anniversary Week. "A Lady of Chance" and "Beau Brummell" for four days; starting Thursday. "Synthetic Sin" and "Beyond the Sierras." Five acts of vaudeville. HOWARD—Burlesque "Sugar Babies" with Harry Fields. Also vaudeville and pictures. GLOBE—"On Trial" Vitaphone all talking adaptation of famous stage play, for four days; starting Thursday. "Marriage by Contract" and "Gang War."

Read the Boston Evening American Sports Pages for Best Sharkey-Stribling Fight Stories

Next Wednesday night Jack Sharkey of Boston and W. L. "Young" Stribling of Atlanta, Ga., will meet at Miami, Fla., in one of the most important heavyweight battles in recent years.

Local interest in the tussle is at a high pitch and is growing greater every day.

Every Boston fan in New England would like to be at the episode in Miami when the battle begins, if it were possible. Unfortunately, it is not possible for most of the people who are able to go to the scene of the fight. The only way to see the fight is to read the Boston Evening American.

Jack Conway, boxing editor of the Boston Evening American, is an old country's staunch boxing authority, will furnish a blow-by-blow account and an expert ringside story of the bout.

Nick Flatley, sports editor of the Boston Evening American, will supply unimpeachable side lights. Damon Runyon, famous sports writer, will point a way around the ring in only ten minutes. "Gentleman Jim" Corbett, former world's heavyweight champion, will describe the scene of the week's fight in a ring-side account, and will give the opinion of a veteran fighter.

And Stribling, who is a professional boxer, will give a blow-by-blow account of the fight, and will give the opinion of a veteran fighter.

Don't put it off. Go to your news dealer and order your copy of the Boston Evening American. If you fail, you will probably find the single copy of the paper for the account of the "Big Six" fight to be tremendous.

And while you're waiting for the big fight, let that you follow the prize-fight action as reported daily by Jack Conway, Mr. Boston, Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling on these pages.

Power Trust Lawyer

Senate Should Promptly Reject Coolidge Nomination of Lenroot

Just why President Coolidge has nominated former Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, to the United States Court of Customs Appeals Congress and the country may well ask.

But there is no doubt about the duty of the Senate in the premises. The Senate should reject this nomination upon the ground that Mr. Lenroot's high salaried services as an attorney for the Power Trust render him ineligible for membership on a judicial tribunal of great power, responsibility and distinction.

As a lawyer for the Power Trust at a salary of $20,000 a year after Wisconsin retired him from the Senate Mr. Lenroot appears to have taken a prominent part in the drafting of the Walsh resolution for a Senatorial investigation of Mr. Lenroot's client.

It is true that the Federal Trade Commission made a most thorough inquiry into the machinations of that trust, but that was not at all due to the efforts of Mr. Lenroot. That was due to the fidelity with which that commission served its client—the American people. That was in spite of what Mr. Lenroot tried to do for his client—the Power Trust.

When Charles Beecher Warren, of Michigan, was nominated for Attorney-General the Senate properly refused to confirm him because of his legal services to another trust.

From the same high sense of duty and for much the same reason the Senate should follow the same course in dealing with the nomination of Mr. Lenroot and refuse to confirm him.

No false sense of "Senatorial courtesy," no "stand-by-the-President" sentimentality, no petty partisan politics should blind the Senate to its duty.

From the prompt and fearless performance of that duty in disposing of an unsuitable nomination to the Court of Customs Appeals the Senate must not flinch.

Monument Worth While

A Great Builder in Africa Lies at Rest

VIEW OF THE GRAVE OF CECIL RHODES
BY MOONLIGHT

Cecil Rhodes created another empire for Britain in the south of Africa.

He developed diamond mines and gold mines, encouraged and promoted white civilization among the black men of South Africa.

He left a vast fortune, part of it to be used taking men from other countries, including America, to be educated at a British university and absorb British ideas.

Of all that he did, making a fortune was to Cecil Rhodes the least important.

His real work was spreading and solidifying the greatness of the British Empire.

He was a man of whom Great Britain and every Britisher may be proud.

Many are the graves that men, great and small, have chosen for the dust that we leave behind us. Some want to be burned and scattered to the winds. Some like to be dropped into the sea.

One Greek philosopher jumped down the mouth of a volcano to arouse romantic interest.

Cecil Rhodes, whose last resting place on THIS earth you see here, chose to be buried on top of South Africa's Matopos mountain, with a brass plate over his coffin that carries the inscription that he ordered, and gigantic rocks standing out clear against the sky providing noble, rugged monuments for a rugged man.

When he had chosen the spot in Africa that suited his needs, Cecil Rhodes wrote:

"I wish to be buried in the Matopos on the hill which I used to visit, and which I call the 'View of the World,' in a square to be cut in the rock on the top of the hill, covered with a plain brass plate with these words thereon, 'Here lie the remains of Cecil John Rhodes.'"

In the picture you see a native Matabelle warrior, one of a number by whom the grave is guarded night and day.

Those that cause this guard to be kept believe that it will last forever.

But men's minds change, and men are forgotten. What was important yesterday is nothing today.

Our very word "mausoleum" comes from King Mausolus, who built the most magnificent tomb the world has known. He and his tomb are gone. The Pharaohs built great pyramids and monuments to live over their buried mummies. The pyramids stand. Only a few students know the dead Pharaohs' names.

But many a generation of Britons will remember the name of and the work for the Empire of Cecil John Rhodes. Well may they be proud of him. He represented British power, the kind that gave strength to Henry the Eighth at home, to Richard the Lion-Hearted in foreign lands, to men that have carried the flag of England north and south, wherever men have gone.

But the finest grave is nothing unless you have DONE SOMETHING BEFORE BEING PUT INTO IT. And if you really HAVE done something worthwhile, the grave doesn't matter. Any place will do, mountain top or valley churchyard.

A Low Down Trick

By T. E. Power

New York Daily Day

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—There are many gold diggers in New York with a baby cry and a lip. These are the flanking adventures who hunt buried treasures, reputed island, and never lose hope in their quest of a sudden fortune.

It is a Manhattan legend that the old governor, Peter Stuyvesant, in his declining days was one of several who made caches in the earth for much of his gold. None of it has been unearthed, so far as is known, but there are many who have faith under cover of night with lantern and pick to find it. Stuyvesant's body, with silver-mounted wooden leg, was placed in a family crypt under a chapel which he proudly erected on his estate. It stands on the spot today occupied by St. Mark's Church and there is a stream of daily visitors to see his tombstone.

The heirs of the high mettle cavalier are thinning, but all are rich and have proven themselves worthy of their illustrious ancestor. The name of Stuyvesant has always commanded respect—one of the most respected, indeed, in Knickerbocker history. Two hundred apartment houses, shops, squares, streets and cafes bear the name, and many a family tree can main be traced to his peaceful blood—whereas the Bloyers got its name from a Dutchman.

There are historians who declare the defiance of the whole British nation was one of the bravest acts of all its history. He had every thing to lose and his sole gain was to be loyal to the unmovable victor he was doing what was best for his people.

In this radio-bawling, jazz-rhythmed, honch-hipping age it is difficult to imagine that in Peter Stuyvesant's time it was considered a disgrace to be a Dutchman.

Meditations of a Wife

By HELEN ROWLAND

THE challenge in a new girl's eyes is like a ring at the telephone; a man is afraid not to answer it, for fear he'll miss something.

Middle age is that dark moment when a woman stops bragging about her sentimental adventures and begins to lie about them; and when a man stops lying about his penitential and begins to boast about them.

THE most dangerous moment of a man's life is that in which he is in and out of a lot of "good sound advice" to a woman who is suffering from a little apoplexy.

A New York dress designer says she has found a brand new source of inspiration in the garments and jewels of the East African natives. But what's new about that? Our fashions and emotions have been coming from the jungle for quite a few years.

Among a man's loves the last is always the best—until it suddenly becomes "the one before the last."

Some women have such a house-cleaning complex that they would not build a castle in Spain, unless they could be sure of having plenty of shaves and a vacuum cleaner in it.

Lots of fighting couples enjoy the excitement of married life. It is only those who are living together in the dead calm of loneliness-for-forever that find it actually monotonous.

Epictetus was a slave. He was a follower of Nero, and his name was Epictetus. He was a slave because his master broke his leg as punishment. It was quite permissible for masters to do that to slaves in the first century. A. D. But, though his master may have broken his leg, nothing on earth could break his spirit. Through all cruelty, privation and humiliation Epictetus was "master of his soul," and by leave words have come ringing down through history as a challenge to all that is noblest in human nature.

I was discouraged the other day. Something had happened to me which seemed monstrously unfair and I was very sorry for myself. I made no attempt to fight this difficulty. Instead I fairly groveled and wallowed in self-pity. And, while I was in the midst of this disgusting exhibition of cowardice, I happened upon certain words which had been uttered nearly 2000 years ago.

Difficulties are the things which show what men are. For the future, in any difficulty, remember that God, like an instructor of athletics, has engaged you with a rough, rugged fight.

For what? That you may be a conqueror like one in the Olympics.

Epictetus kept the shackles off his own soul by deliberately accepting trouble as a challenge and an opportunity to prove his mettle instead of groveling before it like a helpless slave.

Two thousand years ago a fellow man had faced his trade lot with that gallant gesture and here was I, free, white and full of wall, crawling around eating worms because life had become temporarily difficult.

I read the words again—across the centuries at that shackled old and I said in shame and reverence: "KID! I HAD IT TO YOU! YOU'RE A LOT MORE FISH-LIKE THAN I AM!"

The Cradle of Men

By GARRETT H. SERVINS

THE cradle of men, the earliest settlements of man, was not yet truly a human being when he scrambled into the living cradle of the planet, hatched in the ocean that was to make him a world conqueror.

He was not yet fit to be Adam, the father of humanity. The "Garden of Eden" was not to be planted on that high, remote back of the planet, behind the "roof of the world." Glacier-chased, prehistoric man, he crawled westward. He got into more genial climates, where his surroundings were better suited to his growing needs. He arrived at last, after extending through hundreds of miles of wandering, at that critical spot on the earth, which looks critical on the map.

There, the spot toward which all continents converge, Asia, Africa, Europe and America.

There, in luxuriant plains around the mouth of the Nile, the Tigris and the Euphrates, the cradle of men was planted, and the great nations of the world—the Mediterranean, the Atlantic, the Pacific—were born from the human type of the East.

This may be only a captivating dream; but it seems more. George S. Duncan, professor of Egyptology and Assyriology in the American Museum of Natural History, recently gave the tap to the sleeping brain which started this dream by saying that in his opinion Babylon was the cradle of the "human race," but Central Asia was the first home of "man."

For "man" read "Adam," for "human race" read "Pre-Adamites," and a link is made between the tradition that grew into the wonderful story of Genesis and the new line of modern evolutionary modern archaeological science.

When, in a better environment, man was born, he was born with the knowledge of good and evil, and growing in the knowledge of good and evil, he was born with the knowledge of good and evil.

But, remember, I do not say it was Adam, it came because God worked in the very evolution.
